

Reinventing Our Communities (ROC) Lancaster County Cohort Strategic Plan

Lancaster Chamber

What is the Reinventing Our Communities Program

A cross-sector collaboration of organizations, businesses, and community members in Lancaster County participated in the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia's second annual Reinventing Our Communities (ROC) cohort program. This program used a lens of racial justice to focus on equitable business recovery, and to support small business owners and entrepreneurs disproportionately impacted by the COVID-19 pandemic, and those that have been historically and systematically oppressed. The 2021 program targeted nine communities across the U.S., bringing together experts and stakeholders that led the training program. They include: Allentown/PA, Broward County/FL, Charleston/SC, Chester County/PA, Lancaster County/PA, Las Vegas/NV, St. Cloud/MN, Wayne County/PA, and York/PA.

The Lancaster County cohort was represented by twelve cross-sector organizations and businesses: ASSETS, Communication Essentials LLC, Community Action Partnership of Lancaster County, Lancaster City Alliance, Lancaster City Council, Lancaster County Chamber of Commerce, Lancaster County Community Foundation, PhotOle Photography, The Cultured Professional Network, United Way of Lancaster County, Waller Tax & Financial Services, and YWCA Lancaster.

Over this 10-month program, the cohort:

- > Participated in racial equity training led by Race Forward, a nonprofit racial justice organization, and in smaller group trainings with practitioners with business expertise.
- > Engaged Lancaster County businesses and the larger community throughout this initiative to ensure their voices were represented in any strategies that were developed.
- > Identified structural barriers that business owners face, and developed recommendations for equitable business recovery using input from the community, to enhance and fill in gaps that may exist in current initiatives.

Community Centered Strategic Plan

To develop this real time strategy, the ROC cohort used program learnings, and continuously garnered important feedback from Lancaster County BIPOC small business owners through five community conversations. The conversations series called “Centering BIPOC & Underrepresented Business Voices” prompted input from nearly four dozen local business owners. The cohort aims to work with the community to implement this strategic plan, and to be intentional about continuing to communicate progress to the small business community. We also hope organizations adopt recommendations outlined in this plan and that BIPOC small business owners continue to be engaged in any strategies that are implemented.
